'KILL HIM'

Duo jailed for five years after ordering their savage dogs to attack
three policemen, leaving two of them scarred for life

Jailed: Matthew Joannou and Mehmet Koc will serve five years

By Lucy Purdy

TWO men who from Haringey ordered their pit-bull type dogs to savagely attack two police officers have each been ordered to spend five years behind bars.

The off-duty officers were left with permanent scarring after the terrifying attack in Wood Green, with one saying his memories of that day have haunted him ever since. Matthew Joannou, 20, a carpenter, and unemployed 19-year-old Mehmet Koc, both of Newland Road, Hornsey, were sentenced at Wood Green Crown Court last week for the attack which took place on September 1. The callous pair allowed their dogs to viciously attack PC Scott Tiffin after he came off duty from a long shift at the Notting Hill Carnival, with one of them hissing: "I'm going to get my dog to kill you," as they walked past the officer in Coburg Road.

Then one ordered: "Kill him" – at which point one of the dogs ran at PC Tiffin and bit his leg while he shouted in vain for the men to pull the dog off him. The other animal then joined in the attack on the officer who was now covering on the floor, terrified and yelling for help.

Another officer, PC Pete Gilchrist, who was in the area at the time, heard the screams and ran over to help, allowing his colleague to shelter behind some metal gates and for the emergency services to be called.

Joannou and Koc admitted causing grievous bodily harm, unlawful wounding and two counts of having a dog dangerously out of control – three police officers were injured in total. PC Tiffin, whose leg injury was so deep that doctors who treated him at North Middlesex University Hospital were able to pass a probe straight through when examining him, was present at the sentencing and described his ordeal.

He said: "I was terrified when the dogs attacked me that morning – I thought they were going to kill me. Seeing the case through has helped and I'm pleased that it's over."

PC Gilchrist added: "I only did what I think anyone in my position would have done. I've never been very good with dogs, but something took over. I was screaming at the dogs and at the owners to get the dogs off. The image that kept me awake for nights was when I ran round the corner and saw Scott being thrown around on the floor by the dogs. It was the scariest thing I've been involved in."

As sirens approached, Joannou and Koc made off toward the New River housing estate, with the dogs still off their leads, when they were seen by two uniformed officers attending the call. Again, the animals ran at the officers and

Police called to investigate 127 serious dog attacks

SERIOUS dog attacks have forced police in Haringey to investigate almost 130 irresponsible owners in the past four years.

Latest police figures obtained by the Advertiser reveal there have been 127 offences under the 1991 Dangerous Dogs Act in which a dog has either attacked a person, another pet or has been deemed to be dangerously out of control.

The figures come amid an increasingly popular fashion for owners keeping "status dogs" – including outlawed breeds such as pit-bull terriers, to use as weapons or to intimidate people. But police say they are frequently called in to approach owners of more common breeds too. Since March last year officers have been called out 30 times to reports of out of control dogs, and the real numbers could be much higher.

Earlier this month, the government launched a consultation on legislation surrounding dangerous dogs and the public are being asked whether they think dog control orders or even mandatory insurance for owners should be introduced.

The Metropolitan police established a Status Dogs unit in March last year to carry out operations to seize suspected illegal or potentially dangerous dogs, as well as working with local councils and animal welfare groups such as the RSPCA.

Superintendent Chris Barclay, of Haringey police, said it was down to owners to act responsibly. He added: "All dogs, especially certain breeds, need to be properly managed so they do not become aggressive and it is the responsibility of owners to keep their dogs under control."

An RSPCA spokesman added: "We're keen to play a big part in the government's consultation.

"Not only should irresponsible dog owners be punished, but we should prevent this sort of thing in the first place. It is a social problem and we want those issues addressed."

Both dogs are destroyed after horrific attack on two officers

attacked PC Mark Feasey, one biting his leg and the other grabbing his groin, while he tried to fend them off with his baton. More uniformed officers arrived to help control the dogs which were taken to police kennels and the men arrested.

Sentencing, Judge Carr called the assault suffered by PC Tiffin "horrific" and ordered the destruction of the two dogs, saying they represented "a danger to the public" and an "ongoing and permanent risk".

Superintendent Chris Barclay, in charge of operational policing in Haringey, welcomed the sentence. He said: "I'm pleased to say the officers attacked have returned to work and are on full duties. That they returned so quickly is testament to their dedication to the police service and to the people of Haringey. This case demonstrates that when someone uses a dog as a weapon we'll do everything in our power to bring them to justice.

"All dogs, especially certain breeds, need to be properly managed so they do not become aggressive and it is the responsibility of owners to keep their dogs under control." news.haringey@nlhnews.co.uk

Are you aged between 60-69?

- Around 1 in 18 men and 1 in 20 women will develop bowel cancer in their lifetime.
- There are more than 16,000 deaths and around 34,000 new diagnoses of bowel cancer each year in the UK.

Motorist's car attack on female pedestrian

By Lucy Purdy

A WOMAN walking along the pavement in Muswell Hill Broadway was left cut and bruised after a car careered on to the pavement and hit her.

The 20-year-old was near the junction with Queen's Avenue at about 4.30am on March 27 when a silver car mounted the pavement of Muswell Hill Broadway, hitting a phone box as well as the woman.

Passers by reported the car being driven back past the woman and abuse being shouted from inside as it made off south down the Broadway.

She was left with a cut on her hand and bruising to her head and leg. She was taken to hospital but discharged later that day.

Detectives are now scouring CCTV in the area in order to get to the bottom of what happened and have asked witnesses to come forward.

Detective Constable Jane Fluckiger, of Haringey CID, said things could have been far more serious.

She said: "It appears that the suspect used their vehicle as a weapon to cause injury to the victim. We are doing everything that we can to locate the suspect, as the victim could have sustained far more serious injuries as a result of the incident."

"We believe the vehicle lost a wing mirror during the incident. You may have seen the incident or a silver car missing a wing mirror making off from the scene."

"If you have any information about the incident or where this vehicle is now, please contact us."

Anyone with information should contact DC Fluckiger on 020 8345 0712.

Princess Anne shows she cares with visit

CARERS in Crouch End had a right royal time last week when Princess Anne visited to celebrate their charity's sixth year anniversary.

Dedicated staff from Haringey Carers' Centre proudly welcomed Her Royal Highness The Princess Royal to the Haynes Centre, based at Hornsey Central Neighbourhood Health Centre in Park Road, on March 30.

As well as adding her signature to the visitors' book to commemorate the visit, Princess Anne was greeted by Haringey mayor Bernice Vanier, Hornsey and Wood Green MP Lynne Featherstone as well as staff, trustees and funders of the charity.

She is president of the Princess Royal Trust for Carers, to which Haringey Carers is affiliated.

Marylyn Duncan, who cares for her mother who has Alzheimer's, presented the princess with a posy. She said: "I was delighted that Princess Anne came to visit and shared her appreciation of all the work that unpaid carers do. It was an honour to have presented her with flowers."

Viv Manheim, chairwoman of the centre, added: "We hope Princess Anne's visit will highlight the work our centre does in supporting carers in Haringey. There are an estimated 16,000 carers in the area who are caring for someone who is ill or sick and may not even realise that they are a carer, let alone that there is support out there.

"Taking on a caring role can often lead to ill-health, depression and poverty and we're here to make carers' lives easier."

She also warned that more money is needed to help continue their work. "We are a small charity with a small budget, and we are only funded until 2011," she said. "With more money we will be able to change the lives of even more carers in Haringey."

To find out more about the charity, visit the centre in Winkfield Road, Wood Green or call 020 8888 0808.

School catwalk outfits fly the flag for diversity

CHILDREN, parents and staff at Stamford Hill Primary School in Tottenham celebrated their school's cultural diversity with an international fashion show.

Using colourful patterns taken from their own families' wardrobes and drawers, children dressed up in their national costumes during the show on March 26.

The event had been planned since October and was devised as a way of getting parents more involved in their children's education.

Teacher Sade Ajiboye explained: "I looked at what cultures we had in the school and realised there were four main groups; Turkish, Latin American, Caribbean and black African. We asked the children to find some good patterns and they brought back lots and lots."

The most striking designs were then selected to include in the final collection and the cutting and sewing was carried out by five members of staff, with some children lending a hand with the intricate beadwork too.

"We made all sorts, including dresses and ponchos, then got children who were interested in being models on the day," added Mrs Ajiboye, who teaches a reception class at the school in Berkeley Road.

"The dressing up has been really fun and we have made some fabulous clothes!"

"This was really important for the home-to-school link and also as a way of celebrating the cultural diversity in our school."

Motoring into the history books

Inventor honoured with plaque

A PLAQUE has been unveiled at a former factory in Tottenham where renowned engineer John Alfred Prestwich built engines used in racing cars and early aeroplanes were.

Residents and history enthusiasts gathered outside the building in Lansdowne Road to see the official unveiling of the green plaque. The factory was used to build internal combustion engines for racing cars, motorcycles and planes which were shipped around the world.

Internationally known as being fanatical about detail, Prestwich's engines were associated with racing success and used in speedway bikes well into the 1960s. During both world wars, Prestwich's engineers also produced thousands of petrol engines to help towards the war effort.

Dr Jim Lewis, expert on the development of the Lea Valley and an engineer himself, unveiled the plaque at the ceremony. He said: "Prestwich is one of my heroes. He started off in the late 19th century making photographic equipment in his father's greenhouse and designed a lot of important equipment for the burgeoning movie industry.

"One of the cameras he made went to the Antarctic in 1910 with Captain Scott's expedition. He was a stickler for perfection.

"By the time he started making motorcycle engines, the industry which had grown up in the Midlands around Birmingham had stalled somewhat.

"I believe it was Prestwich's engines which provided strength and reliability and kickstarted things again."

The factory in Lansdowne Road employed about 50 people and by 1911 Prestwich had moved to a larger, purpose-built factory in Northumberland Road which housed 19 huge machine bays.

The factory was part of a golden age of industry in the Lea Valley which blossomed after a push to move all the smoky, smelly factories out of central London.

Jewel thief gets collared

A MAN has been charged with the theft of a gold necklace worth more than £2,000 from a jewellery shop in Muswell Hill.

George Munteanu, 21, from Thamesmead, will appear at Highgate Magistrates' Court on April 16 charged with taking the necklace from the shop in Fortis Green Road on the afternoon of March 26.

A patrolling PCSO from Muswell Hill Safer Neighbourhoods team stopped the man after he was chased by shop staff. He had fled the shop without paying and was later arrested on suspicion of shoplifting.

By Jonathan Lovett, arts editor

DEATH-DEFYING stunts, twisting contortionists and award-winning clowns have been wowing the crowds at Alexandra Palace this week during a visit by the internationally renowned Moscow State Circus.

The show is running until Sunday in a specially constructed Big Top in the palace's grounds, featuring some of the world's top circus performers from Russia. Heavily supported by the state, the Russians have always excelled in the circus and even though their financial support was reduced following the fall of communism, the government still pays a good percentage towards facilities in Moscow, from where its greatest circus performers hail.

"The Russians are the creme de la creme of circus artists," said company manager Paul Archer.

"Across the world, in whatever international circus act you see there

Moscow State Circus to show Ally Pally that the Russians are still the lords of the ring

would always be one or two acts from there. In the world cup of circuses the Russians would always compete for gold in acrobatics against the Chinese."

Of course it is in Paul's interests to say that, but it is hard to argue with the weight of history and the nation's obvious dedication to the circus cause.

"They do take it much more seriously," he said. "In Russia it is regarded as a very serious art form and a lot of people from sports and gymnastics backgrounds who want to be a little bit more artistic end up going into the profession. Over here you have football and TV stars in the pages of Hello! whereas there they have circus stars as well."

As with many things, Britain gave birth to an idea before the rest of the world perfected it and sold it back to us. In this case the modern circus as we know it was begun by an enterprising chap called Philip Astley in the 1760s near Waterloo. Travelling circuses visited Russia over the next 150 years but in 1919 Lenin embedded the circus in the nation's consciousness, declaring it "the people's art form" and lending it a status on a par with opera and ballet.

"In Moscow the performers go on a four-year apprenticeship before they are even allowed in front of the public," explained Paul.

"In the first year they have a grounding in all circus skills, in the next couple they specialise, and in the final one they put an act together with choreography and lighting. You compare that with the UK, which only has a couple of circus schools, and the standard of training is nowhere near as high."

After a two-year gap, the circus is back in the fittingly grand surroundings of Alexandra Palace with a new show loosely linked to the life and times of Rasputin. So lots of sex and death, then?!

"Obviously, being a family show we don't go into Rasputin's gruesome end," said Paul, chuckling. "But we like to offer a bit of education in covering his rise as a prophet, his healing powers and journey from peasant to the royal palace in St Petersburg. It's got a bit of a plot and the great thing is you don't need to hijack a child off the street to enjoy it. It's great for adults too."

And, of course, expect a few death-defying stunts along the way...

"You will see a wife shoot an apple off her husband's head using seven simultaneous crossbows," he said. "She fires the arrow that triggers another crossbow that hits a target to trigger another and back and forth until the final one goes into an apple balanced an inch above his head. Then there's two giant hamster wheels with one guy skipping and jumping around on top with no safety apparatus whatsoever, 40ft in the air - blindfolded!"

□ The Moscow State Circus is in the grounds of Alexandra Palace until April 11. For ticket details and times, call the box office on 0844 856 5555.

Shelter (15)

Dir: Mans Marlind and Bjorn Stein. Starring: Julianne Moore, Jonathan Rhys Meyers, Frances Conroy

A SUPERNATURAL thriller is an unusual choice for Julianne Moore, an actress best known for serious, arty films.

Sadly her latest film, Shelter, is let down by a confusing, overblown plot in which the loose ends are left dangling and half-baked ideas about science and religion are banded about.

But despite all this, I found myself quite gripped by the movie's unravelling mystery.

Moore, as watchable as ever, plays Dr Cara Jessop, a psychiatrist who refuses to believe multiple personality disorders exist.

Her father, also a psychiatrist, introduces her to his new patient Adam (Rhys Meyers), who displays disturbing signs of having dual personas. As Cara discovers more and more about Adam she is, predictably, forced to question both her scientific and religious beliefs.

As the film progresses it is clear that one of Adam's personalities belongs to that of David, a disabled man who was tortured to death in the woods more than 20 years ago – a crime that remains unsolved.

The more she unearths about Adam's past, the more Cara realises her family, including her young daughter Samantha, could be in danger. The slick direction by Swedish duo Marlind and Stein

Moore or less hooked, even with this plot

Double take: Jonathan Rhys Meyers and Julianne Moore star keeps the tension cranked up and, although I could see them coming a mile off, I still jumped at all the appropriate moments.

Despite a couple of dodgy accents, Meyers is suitably menacing in the role of Adam and Frances Conroy of Six Feet Under fame is, as always, on fine form as David's mother.

The screenplay is written by Brit Michael Cooney, and clunkily plays with big ideas, all of which amount to little or nothing of any meaning but, suspending my scepticism (is there a horror film out there without a ludicrous plot?), I found myself glued to the screen until the credits rolled.

Now Showing...

The Blind Side (12A)

Sandra Bullock won an Oscar for her single-minded mum who adopts a black teenager. Schamltzy and manipulative it's still very watchable in a Friday night, check your brain out at the box office end of way.

My Last Five Girlfriends (12A)

Congratulations to Julian Kemp for writing and directing the first NO STAR film of the decade. As funny as my dad's funeral this is an appalling Brit anti-comedy that should be tried in The Hague for crimes against humanity.

Shutter Island (15)

Martin Scorsese directs this Gothic melodrama set on a prison island in the mid-1950s. Always watchable, it gradually reveals its own insane logic helped by performances from Leonardo DiCaprio, Mark Ruffalo and a sinister Ben Kingsley.

Alice in Wonderland (PG)

Tim Burton's dark vision is let down by a conventional fantasy adventure script. Still, there's lots to enjoy: particularly Helena Bonham Carter and Johnny Depp fighting for the Utterly Bonkers Oscar as the Red Queen and Mad Hatter.

food

Taste of north Africa and some dining in the dark

The Gannets

Bouga, 1 Park Road, Crouch End
020 8348 5609

STEPPING from the chilly street inside, Bouga is almost like entering another world.

G'day Gannet and I were, pleasingly, confronted with a softly lit room, heavy on the north African decor, as we waltzed into the Moroccan eatery for a spot of dinner.

The menu was extensive, with lots to satisfy my vegetarian companion and we swiftly placed our orders.

First up: beautiful courgette fritters with feta cheese (£3.50) are brought forth, complemented by a refreshing mint dip. Crispy on the outside and gloriously soft in the middle, they melt away on the tongue.

The aubergine chips (£3.95), however, are less than satisfactory: bland and too oily is the verdict from my Australian companion.

Then, halfway through our starters, everything goes dark! No light, no music, and – most worryingly – would that mean no food? The staff don't bat an eyelid (does this happen often?!) and candles are swiftly placed on tables, although there isn't much they can do about the eerie silence. The other diners are suspiciously silent and G'day Gannet and I feel sure our conversation echoes round the dimly lit room.

No reassurance that our food will be prepared as usual is forthcoming as our waiter clears the table. Luckily, our mains arrive shortly after and the smells of Marrakech fill the air again as the waiter lifts the lids of our steaming tagines – slow-roasted Moroccan-style hotpots.

A huge leg of lamb (£10.95) is revealed to me and I peer over at G'day Gannet's vegetable and spinach tagine (£8.95), which smells just as good. Both come with fluffy and lightly spiced couscous, cooked to perfection. My lamb is beautifully tender and also full of Moroccan flavour, wonderfully complemented by prunes and almonds.

G'Day Gannet's generous portion of vegetables mixed with feta cheese, herbs and spices is equally fulfilling and goes down a treat with my Antipodean friend.

Just as we were finishing off our mains, on came the lights and music and civilisation returned.

Unfortunately, the hour was late and we gannets had to make a move. So long, Bouga, it was fun – even in the dark!

what's on

Lauderdale wakes up in classic style

ONE of the less celebrated aspects of the Lauderdale programme is the excellent season known as Concerts in the House.

Quietly tucked away on Sunday mornings, the modest concerts have actually chalked up 128 separate events since they started in 2001.

A launchpad for many young instrumentalists and a few singers, the "family friendly" events are still supported by the Elias Fawcett Trust, renowned for promoting musical education for youngsters. (Ticket prices also reflect their youth appeal, with admission just £1 for schoolchildren).

The latest season once again boasts a number of talents performing on a variety of instruments.

This Sunday, Bucharest-born – and much decorated performer – Florian Mitrea performs a piano recital featuring music from Liszt, Mozart, Beethoven and Chopin.

He's followed next Sunday by the glamorous violin and piano duo Mary Hofman and Anya Fadina, playing music by Bartok, Debussy, Mozart and Stravinsky. In the past two years the duo have performed across the UK, as well as being residents in the Kirsten Kjaers Museum in Denmark. Individually they are also accomplished performers – Anya recently appeared as soloist with the Urals Philharmonic and Kingston Philharmonics, while Mary has worked with ensembles including the Edinburgh Quartet, Scottish Chamber Orchestra and Northern Sinfonia.

● Concerts start at 11.30am and tickets cost £7 (£5 concessions), £1 for schoolchildren. For more details, call the Highgate venue on 020 8348 8716.

Stringing us along: Violinist Mary Hofman

Out and about

● BRITAIN'S "super-star Americana band", no less, play Downstairs at the King's Head this Friday. Los Pistoleros takes centre-stage at the Kalamazoo Klub, which resides in the famous venue in Crouch End Hill, Crouch End. Prepare for an evening of R'n'B, Tex-Mex, rock and roll and swing from 8pm. Tickets cost £12. For more details call 020 8340 1028.

● IAN Dury may have shuffled off this mortal coil but his band, The Blockheads, is still going strong. The boys perform at the Millfield Arts Centre in Silver Street, Edmonton this Saturday at 8pm. One of new wave's best-loved bands performs hits including Hit Me With Your Rhythm Stick and Sex & Drugs & Rock & Roll. Tickets cost £18 (£16 concessions). For more details call 020 8807 6680.

● AN organ concert takes place at Alexandra Palace this evening. As part of the ongoing appeal to raise funds towards the restoration of the Alexandra Palace organ, international recitalist Andrew Fletcher performs from 7.30pm. Doors open at 7pm and tickets cost £7 (adults), £5 (friend of the appeal), free for students. For more details and to make reservations call 01727 861 555.

Castles Estate Agents

Area Focus – The Noel Park N22

WOOD GREEN has so much to offer when it comes to history and architecture. The Noel Park is possibly the best example of this.

Property valuer Steve Hatch from Castles Estate Agents explains, The Noel Park was the grand design of a man called Rowland Plumbe back in the late 1800's. The Noel Park features around 2000 properties in 5 different styles, all rich in Victorian architecture.

Rowland Plumbe was employed by The Artisans Labourers and The General Dwellings Co as their chief architect. He had earned himself the status of being one of the top architects of the period, having designed several hospital buildings in the city of London.

Did you know? - The Noel Park was actually one of the first 'Garden Suburbs' in the world.

The Noel Park was named after Ernest Noel who was a Member of Parliament, he was also the chairperson of the Artisans Company.

Today, the Noel Park has been designated a Grade 4 conservation status (the highest grade awarded). It has the full support of English Heritage, and even has its own conservation advisory committee.

As local property experts, we feel it is very important to highlight the area's history. We also have a professional duty to encourage people to maintain, or restore the architectural riches that their properties have, these original features really do add value to the property!

Castles Estate Agents have been marketing these properties for 25 years now so if anyone needs help or advice regarding a property on the Noel Park, or would like more information about the conservation rules relating to their homes, they can email info@castles.uk.com for a free information booklet.

BENT DOUBLE SINKS SPURS

Setback: Spurs boss Redknapp wants his side to bounce back quickly after two goals from Bent (inset) saw them drop to fifth

By Lee Husson

TOTTENHAM'S Champions League hopes suffered a setback on Saturday as they were beaten 3-1 by Sunderland at the Stadium of Light, allowing Manchester City to leapfrog them into fourth place.

The Black Cats were awarded three penalties by referee Lee Mason, but former Spurs striker Darren Bent converted only one as keeper Heurelho Gomes heroically saved twice to keep the visitors in with a fighting chance.

Bent had opened the scoring after just 36 seconds, the quickest goal in the Premier League this season, and grabbed his second from his first spot-kick of the afternoon when Kyle Walker handled in the box.

The front man then missed twice from 12 yards after trips by Luka Modric and Benoit Assou-Ekotto either side of half-time, before Peter Crouch struck to give Spurs hope moments after being introduced as a substitute.

But Bolo Zenden sealed the game in emphatic fashion with a stunning acrobatic volley which flew past Gomes and saw Tottenham defeated for the first time in almost two months.

"It was an exciting game," Redknapp said after the match.

"Both teams slugged it out, they had a real go. Three penalties they got in one game – I've never seen that before, and there were chances galore at both ends.

"At 2-1 we were back in the game but then they had an amazing finish from Zenden – one of the all-time great volleys.

"We've got to pick ourselves up and get going again next week."

The defeat is a blow to Spurs' chances of finishing fourth, with difficult fixtures against the top three of north London rivals Arsenal, Chelsea and Manchester United all to follow Sunday's FA Cup semi-final clash with Portsmouth.

Redknapp however has told his side not to fear but relish the meetings with the league's best sides, and prove they are good enough to mix it with the big boys at the top.

"We've got a tough run-in but if we can get one or two back to fitness then we've got some great games to look forward to," he said.

Opara fires 'Boro clear of the drop zone

Harefield United 2 Haringey Borough 4

Molten Spartan Premier Division

LLOYD OPARA scored a hat-trick as Haringey Borough claimed a hugely impressive victory at fifth-placed Harefield United on Saturday to move three points clear of the Spartan Premier Division's drop zone.

There was little to suggest that Borough would go on to claim victory in the early stages as Harefield dominated, but the visitors took the lead against the run of play when Opara scored from the spot after a home defender had been penalised for handball.

Opara turned provider for the second goal on 33 minutes, creating the chance for Lee Allen to double the lead with a deflected shot from a tight angle, and the striker raced clear to add the third with a precise finish three minutes later.

Harefield deservedly gave themselves a lifeline in first-half stoppage time when Bosun Adebaki could only turn a free-kick into his own net, but Borough managed to overcome an onslaught after the restart and Opara completed his hat-trick with another penalty on 65 minutes.

Denver Morris pulled another goal back for the hosts with seven minutes remaining, and Borough were forced to survive a number of late scares before their win was confirmed.

Haringey Borough face home games against Brimsdown Rovers (7.45pm) and Leverstock Green (3pm) tomorrow and Saturday respectively before going to Dunstable on Monday (7.45pm).

Big-time boxing returns to the Palace

TOP-CLASS boxing returns to Alexandra Palace on Friday night when two European titles will be on the line.

Former Olympic gold medallist Audley Harrison tops the bill with his European heavyweight title fight against old rival and Commonwealth champion Michael Sprott, while Barnett's British and European Commonwealth champion Darren Barker takes on Frenchman Affif Belghecham for the vacant European middleweight crown.

Harrison and Sprott fought previously in February 2007, and Harrison will be out for revenge after being knocked out in the third round on that occasion.

"I'm glad I get a chance to correct the mistakes I made in that fight," he said. "To have the opportunity to rectify my loss against Sprott is a blessing that is better than my expectations.

"In 2007, had I beaten Sprott I would've fought for the world title that year. Now I've gone full circle and I will show I'm finally ready to fulfil my destiny and fight for and win a world title."

The night will also feature a packed undercard of fights, with talented young welterweight Chris Evangelou – who grew up in the shadow of the Palace and now lives in Enfield – among those in action.

The doors open at 6pm, and tickets costing £30 or £60 are available on 0871 230 7148.
